

COVID-19 FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

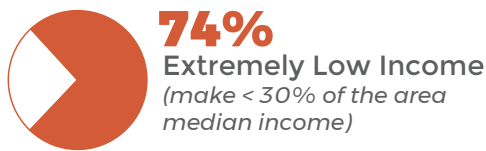

The most severe impacts stemming from the COVID-19 pandemic have fallen upon the poorest and most vulnerable members of our community. And with low-income households suffering the brunt of job losses, temporary workplace closures or reduced hours, even more of our neighbors are being pushed into financial crisis and towards the edge of homelessness.

Through the COVID-19 Financial Assistance Program, Destination: Home, Sacred Heart Community Service and dozens of public and private partners have helped put critical financial assistance directly in the hands of residents financially-impacted by the pandemic - with a focus on our lowest-income residents and those who are ineligible for unemployment benefits or federal stimulus checks.

Since launching in March, the COVID-19 Financial Assistance Program has provided:

The COVID-19 Financial Assistance Program is a unique collaboration between dozens of public and private partners, and a part of Silicon Valley Strong

The COVID-19 Financial Assistance Program reflects a true partnership between the public, private, philanthropic and non-profit sectors to help the many residents who've been severely impacted by this unprecedented crisis.

Our deepest thanks goes to the dozens of donors who generously contributed to this critical initiative:

We are also thankful for the non-profit partners who have been instrumental in helping us reach and serve vulnerable residents throughout our community:

WE NEED YOUR HELP TO ASSIST MORE RESIDENTS IN-NEED

Sadly, the need in the community is vastly larger than the resources we have available. In fact, since launching the program, we've received more than 32,000 requests for assistance. We must come together to assist struggling neighbors in-need.
